

A technical drawing of a mechanical assembly, likely a pump or motor, shown in a side view. The drawing is a line drawing with hidden lines indicated by dashed lines. The assembly consists of a base, a central housing, and a rotating component (impeller or rotor) on the right. The rotating component has a series of curved blades or vanes. The drawing is labeled with various dimensions and features, including a central shaft and a mounting bracket on the left.

