

A technical line drawing of a mechanical assembly, likely a pump or motor, shown from a side profile. The assembly consists of a large, rectangular base with two mounting feet. On top of the base is a complex assembly of components, including a cylindrical motor or pump housing, a central vertical shaft or pipe, and various flanges and fittings. The drawing uses standard engineering conventions, including dashed lines to indicate hidden internal features and solid lines for visible components.

